Climate Tech Micro-to-Macro: Building a Net-Zero Future

The 2026 WCE will be held under the theme “Climate Tech Micro-to-Macro: Building a Net-Zero Future.” This year’s edition will highlight the pivotal role of comprehensive climate technologies—from micro-level innovations to macro-scale deployments—in driving the global transition to a sustainable and resilient energy system. The event will serve as a premier platform for international cooperation to explore how scalable technologies can transform industries and accelerate our collective journey toward net-zero.

The EXPO will feature a full three-day program from 16 to 18 September 2026, beginning with the official opening ceremony and high-level global summits focusing on leadership, climate finance, and renewable innovations, alongside an exhibition showcasing the latest breakthroughs in climate tech.

This year’s WCE is particularly significant as it brings together leading international institutions spanning policy, energy, finance, and technology deployment. These joint efforts will offer a unique opportunity to foster meaningful dialogue, bridge technology with investment, and generate synergies among global policymakers, industry leaders, and key stakeholders.

We cordially invite you to the 2026 World Climate Industry EXPO. May this expo serve as a defining moment to establish a new paradigm for the global climate industry, offering you an invaluable opportunity to lead the way in innovation and collaboration.

Thank you.
